Dear John.

Herewith the tape of Alan Marshall's final interview. I am sorry for the delay in sending it but apart from not being able to do it straight off I have spend a couple of weeks in the repat, hospital, which delayed things even further.

Also I had a sort of reluctance, as though my mind was rejecting the fact of Alan's death which I was acknowledging by sending the tape. However, that is all over now and I hope the tape is of use to you. I would appreciate a copy of the issue you use it in.

The tape is a copy of the original interview, warts and all, and starts with Alan playing the mouth organ to amuse himself when I arrived unexpected. The instrument he was using had been with him for for 40 years and had played at many a campfire.

regards

Peter Baster
