Dear John,

I write to thank you for the important contribution you made to the sixth public meeting related to the development of the new Library. We are grateful to all who participated, for the thoughtful contribution they made, and the presentation of ideas which will be fully considered in the development of the design brief for the new Library.

It was particularly valuable to have your vision of "what could be" set out for all too often we are trammelled by "what is". I am sure that the creation of a welcoming atmosphere which does not overawe or embarrass those who do not know where things are, is all important.

I hope that you found your involvement in the meeting of interest. Those of us associated with the library certainly appreciated the contribution you made.

Yours sincerely,

Norman G. Curry
President
