Dear Mr. McLaren:

Thank you for your letter, received Friday.

Herewith the Concise Oxford Dictionary, your Manuscript and 2 copies of Melbourne Studies 1979. I gave Dr. Murray-Smith a call and he said he was in the process of sending some copies to you. However, I came across these 2 copies in the storeroom and thought I would send them on to you in the event the other copies didn't reach you. I am also enclosing some odd bits of mail which I received this morning, and also a note from David.

I am glad you have settled in comfortably and hope that the English winter will not be too cold. Everyone sends their regards - it is pretty hectic here at the moment, as you can imagine. We have received 40 outside applications for A.C.S. and 34 Urban Studies (Not bad, eh?).

Thanks for your offer to do something for me, but there is not anything I can think of at the moment.

Very best wishes to you and Shirley for Christmas and the New year.

Yours sincerely,
