Mr John McLaren,
359 Pigdon Street,
NORTH CARLTON 3053

Dear John,

Introduction to Australian Literature

I thought I'd drop you a note just to confirm our telephone conversation today. I understand that when you've finished the last chapter of the manuscript, you'll be sending it to Michael Dugan and Anne Gunter. They will then return the whole manuscript to you with comments. During a final revision you will be cutting the manuscript to bring it back, I presume, to the 320 pages originally envisaged.

As I mentioned on the phone, could you drop me a line or give me a ring when you receive the manuscript back for this final revision so that we can work out a manuscript delivery date and I can provisionally allocate staff and resources. When the manuscript is finally submitted, we will be doing another cast off. If you'd like this to be done at an earlier stage to make sure that your cutting is sufficient, I'd be quite happy to arrange this.

With best wishes,

Yours sincerely,

ANNE PETERSON
